Devastating Financial Mistakes Most Entrepreneurs make..

Most investors, business owners and other entrepreneurial types end up financing the growth of their businesses using their personal credit.

- They buy business-related items with their personal credit cards.
- They "borrow" the money they've socked away in retirement, education and savings accounts - and "invest it into the business.
- And once their borrowing limits are maxed out - they may even persuade their spouses or other family members into using their credit to continue financing the business.
- The bad - and perhaps unexpected - news is it's a recipe for disaster

Here's how using personal credit to finance your company's launch, operation and/or growth can get you into serious financial trouble:

- 1. When you use your personal credit card to buy business items, you instantly slash the amount of credit you have available to get the things you and your family need and want. And if you, like many Americans, regard your credit cards as the financial cushion that will carry you through emergencies, like an illness that makes it impossible to work, wasting your credit on business expenses might destroy your safety net.
- 2. When you invest your savings into your business, you might see a return on your investment. But if your business goes under (a strong possibility, when you consider that the Small Business Administration reports that 95% of businesses close their doors within 5 years of opening), you'll lose EVERYTHING.

Here's how using personal credit to finance your company's launch, operation and/or growth can get you into serious financial trouble:

3. When you use your personal money and assets for financing, you risk damaging your personal credit in two ways.

One, getting the financing requires a personal credit check. And every time an inquiry is made, your credit score takes a hit. The lower your score drops, the harder it is to secure financing - especially with the most favorable terms.

Second, the more credit you have personally guaranteed for your business, the less lenders will be willing to give you for personal use. Signing that loan for your business could prevent you from getting a mortgage on the new house you plan to buy a year from now.

We Have Good News!

You Don't Have to Play Russian Roulette with Your Family's Finances to Secure the Cash You Need for your Business.

- You can get the business financing you need - and avoid the problems involved with borrowing against your personal credit. Business financing for corporations is available.
- The secret is corporate credit - credit that's established in the name of and secured by your business.
- By using corporate credit, you can leverage millions of additional financing dollars. The only "trick" is knowing how to secure corporate credit
- W.E.C has developed a proprietary, step-by-step system that virtually any business can use to secure corporate credit.
- And the best news of all is that we are talking about the best possible kind of Corporate Credit - cash..
